FROM SUBURB TO CITY

ACADEMIC PROGRAM

For two weeks around 100 students from various Swiss universities will devote themselves to preserving the landscape. The Summer Academy Zurich, jointly directed by Architects Group Krokodil and the D-ARCH, offers concrete solutions to the questions arising in urban development.

DESIGN STUDIOS

After lengthy preliminary studies we proposed a new city that develops visions formulated in recent years in Switzerland. Here, too, we are motivated primarily by a desire to contribute to preserving the landscape.

CREATING CITIES, DESIGNING LANDSCAPES

The conference "From Suburb to City" was an event organized by the European Spatial Planning Organisation (ESPON) and the Summer Academy Zurich in 2012. It aimed to bring together architects, planners, and landscape designers to discuss the role of architecture in the development of cities and urban areas. The conference focused on the relationship between theoretical and practical approaches to urban planning, with a particular emphasis on the challenges facing the development of new urban areas.

The conference was held in Zurich, Switzerland, and featured a range of keynote speakers and panel discussions. The event was supported by several organizations, including the ETH Zurich and the ZHAW Winterthur. The conference was divided into several sections, including academic programs, design studios, and speakers.

The conference covered a wide range of topics, including the role of architecture in the development of new cities and urban areas, the relationship between theoretical and practical approaches to urban planning, and the challenges facing the development of new urban areas. The event was attended by over 100 students from various Swiss universities, who participated in design studios and contributed to the development of new cities and urban areas.

Overall, the conference was a successful event that brought together architects, planners, and landscape designers to discuss the role of architecture in the development of cities and urban areas. The event was an important opportunity for participants to share their ideas and experiences, and to contribute to the development of new urban areas.
